The radio programs will be broadcast by the United Press Reporter from the newsroom of the United Press in Chicago.

The announcer will refer to Brainerd in each broadcast as "The ideal place to spend your summer vacation" and will invite all the listeners to come to the Brainerd lake region to enjoy the beauty of the thousand lakes and 255 resorts in this vicinity.

Invaluable to the benefit of Brainerd and the lake region also will be the fact that the better programs will be announced in connection with the latest telegraphic news dispatches.

By this time thousands who have as yet not learned of the wonderful attractions of Brainerd and the lake region will hear facts which will help them in deciding where to spend their summer vacation this year.

The announcer, J. C. Austin, will start the programs something like this:

"Hello everybody, this is the United Press Reporter broadcasting over WLS for the Brainerd Dispatch at Brainerd, Minnesota. Brainerd the ideal place to spend your summer vacation."

And he will continue to tell of the attractions here, invite everybody to come to the lake district of Brainerd and will inform the listeners of the many diversified resorts and of the lakes teeming with fish.

The broadcasts are made possible by the fact that the Brainerd Dispatch Co. is a member of the United Press Association.

BENGAL WITNESSES INSURGENT OUTBREAK

Calcutta, India, April 19.—(UP)—A sergeant major of the Anglo-Indian forces and four Indians were shot and killed in an outbreak of insurgents at Chittagong, Bengal, last night.

Insurrectionary mobs attacked the railway station and police armories in a violent attack, leaving them wrecked. The sergeant major and his men were killed in a spirited defense of the buildings.

2 MEN UNDER ARREST AS MURDER IS INVESTIGATED

MISS MARY BAKER, NAVY DEPARTMENT EMPLOYEE, FOUND SLAIN

BULLET-PIERCED BODY FOUND
UNDER CULVERT NEAR AR-
LINGTON CEMETERY

Washington, April 19.—(UP)—Two men were under arrest today in connection with the murder a week ago of Miss Mary Baker, young navy department employee, whose bullet-pierced body was found under a culvert near Arlington Memorial Cemetery.

Both are from Warsaw, Va. The one, Mervin Sisson, 35, a traveling salesman, was arrested at his home last night by Arlington, Va., county authorities and was taken to the Arlington county jail for questioning.

The other, Julian E. Gallagher, 28, likewise a traveling salesman, was arrested by Richmond, Va., police and is in custody there.

Sisson, questioned all night by officers, steadfastly denied that he murdered the girl. He presented what police considered a convincing alibi. Police said he accounted for his movements during the entire day.

Investigators alleged that Miss Baker had been meeting Sisson for several years and that he knew her and her family in the small Virginia town where she formerly lived.

The murder, which has stirred Washington more than any tragedy in many months, occurred last Friday night. According to witnesses, Miss Baker spent several hours riding and parking with a male companion who, apparently, later shot her.

Providence, R. I., April 19.—(UP)—Rioting was reported to have broken out this afternoon at the Rhode Island state prison in Howard. First reports received here gave no details but indicated that several shootings had marked the disturbance.

Weather Switch Blamed for Fatal Plane Crash

GLORIA YOUNG, AGE 2, BITES EAR OFF HER PET DOG

Helena, Ark., April 19.—(UP)—Two year old Gloria Young, daughter of Charles Young, editor of the Helena World, has had her name in a front page story because she bit a dog.

Not only did Gloria bite the dog—making a story of course—but she bit the ear off her father's prize bird dog.

Young said the dog was first to report the item.

RANKS OF LAST MAN'S CLUB ARE CLOSED UP AGAIN

ONLY CHARLES LOCKWOOD, 89,
OF CHAMBERLAIN, S. D., RE-MAINS

IS LAST OF BAND OF GALLANT
CIVIL WAR VETER-ANS

Atwater, Minn., April 19.—(UP)—The ranks of the last man's club had closed up again today and only Charles Lockwood, 89, of Chamberlain, S. D., remained of that gallant band of civil war veterans.

Another member, Peter O. Hall, 91, of Atwater, died suddenly at his home last night. Lockwood remains alone to drink a toast to his departed comrades of Company B, First Minnesota Volunteer Infantry.

It was the gallant Minnesota unit that stopped Pickett's historic charge at Gettysburg. At the end of the charge only six members of B company were fit for duty. But they carried on through Bull Run, Fair Oaks, Antietam, South Mountain and Fredericksburg.

The famous club was formed of the survivors of B Company 44 years ago. Every year the aging comrades met at a dinner on July 21, and each year the attendance was smaller.

Formed as a gesture of happiness at the end of the Civil War, the club purchased a bottle of rare old Burgundy wine, which graced the center of the table at each reunion. Lockwood will drink a toast from the bottle to the other 32 original members of the club.

"I wonder," Lockwood said at the last reunion, "if we will ever meet again. Time is taking its toll."

"God Demmet, of course we will and for a good many years," chided little "Johnny" Goff, the "boy member" of the club. Johnny died August 27 last. "I think perhaps you and Johnny will be alone next year," Hall told Lockwood after the banquet was over and the newspaper photographers left.

Death came peacefully to Hall although his niece and housekeeper said he had been prepared for it for several years. He succumbed at 5:15 p. m. after an unusually active day.

Chamberlain, S. D., April 19.—(UP)—The bottle of rare old Burgundy that was to be drained in a toast to departed comrades will remain untouched by Charlie Lockwood, "youngster" and sole survivor of the Last Man's club of Company B, First Minnesota Volunteers.

Lockwood today was making plans for the final ceremony that will bring the organization to an end, just 45 years after its founding. But he is too old to drink the wine that was to go to the last living man of the 33 who founded the club.

"Even if they would let me, I couldn't bear to drink the wine," Lockwood said today. He planned to present it to the Minnesota State Historical society as the final act of the club.

FOUR MEN FROM SAILBOAT RESCUED

Washington, April 19.—(UP)—Coast guard headquarters here was advised early today by the commander of its station at Green Bay, Wis., that four men from a sailboat which capsized at the entrance to Duluth, Minn., harbor had been rescued, while a fifth was missing.

The message was very brief and did not give details of the rescue nor the names of the men on the boat.

'WORLD'S BEST OPTIMISTS' MEET

Milwaukee, April 19.—(UP)—A majority of the members of the Milwaukee Association of Master Brewers, self styled "world's best optimists," are still optimistic about the possibility of a repeal of the 18th amendment, they reported today after their annual meeting.

Of the 35 men who attended the meeting, 34 believed that prohibition laws will be modified or repealed in the near future. Peter Kirschstein, Chicago, was the one who did not agree. The members of the association are from various parts of Wisconsin and Illinois.

Republicans and Farmer-Laborites are Now Wondering What State Democrats Will Do

ARE ANXIOUSLY WAITING FOR A 'LEAK' IN NEWS

DEMOCRATS MAY PLAN FUSION
WITH FARMER-LABOR PARTY

SOUTHERN MINNESOTA F-L
MEMBERS ARE MARKING TIME

Minneapolis, Minn., April 19.—(UP)—Republicans and Farmer Laborites alike today anxiously waited for a "leak" that might indicate what the Minnesota democrats would do regarding a fusion with the farmer labor party in the coming election.

Future action by southern Minnesota members of the farmer-labor party awaited the action of the democratic state convention here Tuesday.

Southern farmer-laborites yesterday postponed their scheduled "rump" convention in the hope they might be able to patch up their grievances with twin cities leaders after the democratic leaders had been forced to commit themselves in their state convention.

Timothy J. Doyle, democratic Ramsey county chairman, has announced his group will oppose any fusion plans which would give democratic and farmer-labor support to the democratic senatorial candidate and the candidacy of Floyd B. Olson, endorsed farmer-labor candidate for governor.

Farmer-Labor leaders, influenced, it was said, by Olson's called "Declaration of Independence" to the party's convention when he won the nomination, are said not to be willing to make such a fusion even if it insured Olson's election.

Political circles pointed out that neither Knud Wefald, Hawley, nor Ernest Lundeen, Minneapolis, who are seeking the farmer-labor endorsement for U. S. senator are the type of men who would withdraw in favor of a democrat.

Holdup Men Try to Blow Up Street Car in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, April 19.—(UP)—Holdup men attempted to blow up a Washington interurban street car today, exploding a bomb 15 feet in front of the speeding car, according to county detectives who have one man under arrest.

The trolley, bound from Washington to Pittsburgh, sped past the scene of the blaze with four broken windows and a group of panic stricken passengers, none of whom were injured.

HOLDS FUSS OF MODERN MARRIAGE IS INDELICATE

London, April 19.—(UP)—George Bernard Shaw holds that the fuss and publicity attendant upon modern marriages is almost indelicate, and that the only proper way to be wedded is to go quietly to the registrar's office and have it over with.

"Marriage should be as quiet as possible," he said today in an interview with the Daily News. "The ideal way is for the bride and bridegroom to go to the registrar's office," he continued reminiscently. "I was dressed practically in rags, because I was on crutches, and you can't wear morning dress with crutches."

"Professor Graham Wallas, who was present, was tall, handsome and well dressed. He was mistaken for the bridegroom, and was nearly married instead of me."

SILK UPHOLSTERY

New York, April 19.—(UP)—The man who brags about his automobile may feel less boastful when he learns that a new limousine has just been built for the Shah of Persia along these lines:

Body—white, striped with gold. Fittings—gold throughout, including headlamps, radiator and hubcaps.

Upholstery—champagne-colored silk with hand embroidery.

Rugs—imported Russian wolfhound fur.

Accessories—Cigarette case and lighter of solid gold encrusted with diamonds; jeweled crests decorating doors and panels.

The car, on display here under heavy guard, was built in the Pierce-Arrow factory at Buffalo. Company officials declined to reveal its cost.

HEAVY RAIN REMOVES FOREST FIRE PERIL

Hayward, Wis., April 19.—(UP)—The forest fire peril in southern townships of Sawyer county has been removed for the time being by heavy rain and snow, it was reported today by county officials. A number of small grass fires were extinguished by the snow and rain and officials believe there will be no further danger from forest fires this spring.

CENSUS TAKER IN DEATH VALLEY IN SAD PLIGHT

LAY AT EDGE OF DRY LAKE, EX-HAUSTED AND WITHOUT WATER FOR HOURS

W. J. LITTLE OF SAN BERNARDINO
RESCUED BY PASSING MOTORIST

Los Angeles, April 19.—(UP)—Lying in the bed of a dry lake at the edge of Death Valley, exhausted and without water for hours, a young census taker who had gone out to enroll the desert population was saved by a passing motorist, it was learned here today.

William J. Little left San Bernardino two weeks ago in a small truck. After taking the names of 198 persons in the 400 miles of sandy wastes and poison springs, he turned his track into the Panamint mountains. His supply of water was gone, but he remembered an old mine near Modoc, where there was a spring. When he arrived the spring was dry. There were several dead burros nearby.

Little was 26 miles from the nearest water and his truck was in poor condition. He rode on and did not stop until the truck stuck in a sand drift on the almost impassable road, and a shaft broke.

The census taker started to walk, but finally collapsed. He was found by another motorist, taken to San Bernardino and reported to his chief here.

VICK'S VAPOR RUB WINS COURT CASE

Philadelphia, April 19.—A court decision in which protection of the buying public is emphasized has just been handed down by Judge Thompson, presiding in United States district court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, in the case of Vick Chemical Co. against Frederick E. Strohmeier and involving fraudulent use of the plaintiff's trade name, Vicks Vaporub, by the defendant, Strohmeier. The Vick Chemical Company is upheld.

"The defendant will be enjoined," Judge Thompson's decision reads, "against use of the plaintiff's trade name, as he has been using it, to deceive and perpetrate a fraud upon the public and, by pirating its trade mark, to injure and damage the reputation the plaintiff has built up."

BUDD TO AID SOVIET IN RAIL REHABILITATION

Chicago, April 19.—(UP)—Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern railroad, announced today he had accepted an invitation of the Russian Soviet government to go to Russia this summer to advise it in rebuilding its railroad system along lines of American standards.

Budd will sail June 1 to spend three months in Europe, most of it in the Soviet republic, he said.

DISASTER IN COSTESHTI TOWN GOOD FRIDAY

MAJORITY OF VICTIMS WOMEN
AND CHILDREN, MANY BOD-IES CHARRED

BUT ONE MAIN DOOR TO THE
CHURCH AND IT OPENED
INWARD

Bucharest, Rumania, April 19.—(UP)—More than one-tenth of the entire population of the little village of Costeshti died in agony when the church in which they had gathered last night for Good Friday services became a blazing furnace.

Of those who died in the appalling tragedy, the bodies of 96 were recovered today. Eight were so charred as to be unrecognizable. Perhaps a score of others were believed killed.

Eye witnesses agree the great loss of life occurred because there was but one main door to the church opening inward. The great press of the panic stricken congregation against the door trapped the entire body of worshippers.

A majority of the victims were women and children.

Of twenty members of the village choir, all are known to have perished. The two priests officiating at the final ceremonies of the day also were among the victims. Many of the survivors became temporarily insane from the horror.

Heroic tales of how some labored in the burning edifice were told today as the little town went into mourning. Costeshti, in Walachia province, 55 miles northwest of Bucharest, has only 1,010 inhabitants.

The priests, reports said, died trying to save the congregation. The mayor perished with many others who were prominent in the civic and commercial life of the village.

Costeshti had quietly celebrated Good Friday and the little wooden church was packed at the evening services. Candles had been lighted, and from one of these a curtain, blown in the spring draft, was ignited.

The victims will be buried in a common grave tomorrow, on the site of the destroyed church.

Every member in Costeshti mourns the death of some member, and in many cases whole families, both parents and children, were wiped out.

RECALL DAYS OF THE STAGE COACH

Council Bluffs, Ia., April 19.—(UP)—Days of the stage coach and frequent holdups by highwaymen were recalled today as a posse scoured side roads of southwestern Iowa, seeking two men who last night held up and robbed 18 passengers on a transcontinental bus.

The bandits, boarding the bus near Edward Schlitzman, Omaha, the driver, under guard, drove on his route. The bandits obtained little of value, officials of the bus line said.

FARMER HIT IN HEAD BY PIECE OF WOOD DIES

Owatonna, Minn., April 19.—(UP)—Struck in the head by a flying piece of wood, Ernest Meyer, 36, Claremont township farmer, died in the Nelson hospital today as the result of a fractured skull.

Meyer was injured late yesterday when a heavy piece of wood thrown by a circular saw on which he was sharpening fence posts struck him in the head.

AVIATION OFFICIAL AND THREE OTHER PERSONS KILLED

MONTREAL-NEWARK AIRPLANE
IN ACCIDENT NEAR JER-
SEY CITY

GROPING IN FOG FOR LANDING
PLACE, STRIKES HIGH TEN-
SION WIRE

New York, April 19.—(UP)—An unexpected change in weather conditions was cited today as responsible for the deaths of Count Henri De La Vaulx, of Paris, president of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, and three other persons when a Montreal-Newark monoplane crashed near Jersey City last night.

Earl F. Ward, chief of operations of the Canadian Colonial Airways, Inc., operators of the airline, conducted a preliminary investigation of the accident and issued a statement in which he intimated that there was no actual evidence of neglect.

The occupants were burned almost beyond recognition when the plane, groping through the fog for a landing place, struck a high tension wire and crashed.

The dead:

Count Henry De La Vaulx, 60, Paris. Mrs. Mary E. Williams, Providence, R. I.

Arthur V. Conklin, 33, Huntington, L. I.

John Sollway, 37, Albany, N. Y., the pilot.

Little was left of the Fairchild monoplane when officials extinguished the flames and removed the bodies.

The plane, a seven-passenger model, left the Canadian city at 12:15 P. M. Fighting headwinds all the way, the plane reached Albany at 3:10, 29 minutes behind schedule. Sollway was advised there was a 900 foot ceiling or level beneath which there was good visibility at Newark and he took off again.

Late afternoon shoppers in Jersey City heard the droning of the plane's engines as the ship arrived. Watchers below saw it careen between the buildings and at one time it appeared certain it would crash.

The pilot sighted a beacon atop the Labor Bank building and probably mistaking it for another headed off toward the northwest, instead of the southwest as he should have.

Then Sollway found a "hole" in the fog and over the meadows near the plant of the Public Service Gas and Electric Company. Swooping down, the plane was headed directly for the dangerous high tension wires when a watchman waved a warning. It was too late. There was a crash, a tongue of flame and the plane fell to earth enveloped by fire.

His supply of water was gone, but he remembered an old mine near Modoc, where there was a spring. When he arrived the spring was dry. There were several dead burros nearby.

Little was 26 miles from the nearest water and his truck was in poor condition. He rode on and did not stop until the truck stuck in a sand drift on the almost impassable road, and a shaft broke.

The census taker started to walk, but finally collapsed. He was found by another motorist, taken to San Bernardino and reported to his chief here.

VICK'S VAPOR RUB WINS COURT CASE

Philadelphia, April 19.—A court decision in which protection of the buying public is emphasized has just been handed down by Judge Thompson, presiding in United States district court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, in the case of Vick Chemical Co. against Frederick E. Strohmeier and involving fraudulent use of the plaintiff's trade name, Vicks Vaporub, by the defendant, Strohmeier. The Vick Chemical Company is upheld.

"The defendant will be enjoined," Judge Thompson's decision reads, "against use of the plaintiff's trade name, as he has been using it, to deceive and perpetrate a fraud upon the public and, by pirating its trade mark, to injure and damage the reputation the plaintiff has built up."

DISASTER IN COSTESHTI TOWN GOOD FRIDAY

MAJORITY OF VICTIMS WOMEN
AND CHILDREN, MANY BOD-
IES CHARRIED

BUT ONE MAIN DOOR TO THE
CHURCH AND IT OPENED
INWARD

Bucharest, Rumania, April 19.—(U.P.)—More than one-tenth of the entire population of the little village of Costeshti died in agony when the church in which they had gathered last night for Good Friday services became a blazing furnace.

Of those who died in the appalling tragedy, the bodies of 96 were recovered today. Eight were so charred as to be unrecognizable. Perhaps a score of others were believed killed.

Eye witnesses agree the great loss of life occurred because there was but one main door to the church opening inward. The great press of the panic stricken congregation against the door trapped the entire body of worshippers.

A majority of the victims were women and children.

Of twenty members of the village choir, all are known to have perished. The two priests officiating at the final ceremonies of the day also were among the victims. Many of the survivors became temporarily insane from the horror.

Heroic tales of how some labored in the burning edifice were told today as the little town went into mourning.

Costeshti, in Walachia province, 55 miles northwest of Bucharest, has only 1,010 inhabitants.

The priests, reports said, died trying to save the congregation. The mayor perished with many others who were prominent in the civic and commercial life of the village.

Costeshti had quietly celebrated Good Friday and the little wooden church was packed at the evening services. Candles had been lighted, and from one of these a curtain, blown in the spring draft, was ignited.

The victims will be buried in a common grave tomorrow, on the site of the destroyed church.

Every member in Costeshti mourns the death of some member, and in many cases whole families, both parents and children, were wiped out.

Council Bluffs, Ia., April 19.—(U.P.)—Days of the stage coach and frequent holdups by highwaymen were recalled today as a posse scoured side roads of southwestern Iowa, seeking two men who last night held up and robbed 18 passengers on a transcontinental bus.

The bandits obtained little of value, officials of the bus line said.

AVIATION OFFICIAL AND THREE OTHER PERSONS KILLED

MONTREAL-NEWARK AIRPLANE
IN ACCIDENT NEAR JER-
SEY CITY

GROPING IN FOG FOR LANDING
PLACE, STRIKES HIGH TEN-
SION WIRE

New York, April 19.—(U.P.)—An unexpected change in weather conditions was cited today as responsible for the deaths of Count Henri De La Valk, of Paris, president of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, and three other persons when a Montreal-Newark monoplane crashed near Jersey City last night.

Earl F. Ward, chief of operations of the Canadian Colonial Airways, Inc., operators of the airline, conducted a preliminary investigation of the accident and issued a statement in which he intimated that there was no actual evidence of neglect.

The occupants were burned almost beyond recognition when the plane, groping through the fog for a landing place, struck a high tension wire and crashed.

The dead: Count Henry De La Valk, 60, Paris. Mrs. Mary E. Williams, Providence, R. I. Arthur V. Conklin, 33, Huntington, L. I.

John Solloway, 37, Albany, N. Y., the pilot.

Little was left of the Fairchild monoplane when officials extinguished the flames and removed the bodies.

The plane, a seven-passenger model, left the Canadian city at 12:15 p. m. Fighting headwinds all the way, the plane reached Albany at 3:10, 29 minutes behind schedule.

Solloway was advised there was a 900 foot ceiling or level beneath which there was good visibility at Newark and he took off again.

Late afternoon shoppers in Jersey City heard the droning of the plane's engines as the ship arrived. Watchers below saw it careen between the buildings and at one time it appeared certain it would crash.

The pilot sighted a beacon atop the Labor Bank building and probably mistaking it for another headed off toward the northwest, instead of the southwest as he should have.

Then Solloway found a "hole" in the fog and over the meadows near the plant of the Public Service Gas and Electric Company. Swooping down, the plane was headed directly for the dangerous high tension wires when a watchman waved a warning. It was too late. There was a crash, a tongue of flame and the plane fell to earth enveloped by fire.

The steamer, named for one of its owners, John J. O'Hagan of Tonawanda, carried a cargo of scrap from Detroit to the Bethlehem Steel Company.

"The trip was without accident although at times a thick fog lay over the water," Captain Hugh O'Hagan, the steamer's skipper, said. "Slushy ice floes were encountered over the entire route."

Easter Eggs an Old Custom

THE continuance, the rise and fall of festivals is one of the darker mysteries of the human race, says the New York Herald-Tribune. Why should Easter still be with us when Twelfth Night, Whitsuntide and Michaelmas have almost vanished? Once upon a time Twelfth Night was the jolliest of feasts, merry with was-sail parties, and everybody had a cake, a cake with a bean in it. Frazer gives many of the curious Whitsunday customs, some of which still survive in Europe, though in this country they have virtually disappeared. And where are the goose, the "apple sauce, onions and sage" which once graced the board at the feast of Michaelmas?

Only the egg habit of Easter has grown with the years, and the modern child expects a clutch of eggs with the same confidence as presents at Christmas. In the early days the chocolate eggs, the toy eggs, the pasteboard ovals with their varied "gifts" were unknown. Eggs there were, but they were only the simple product of the hen, which fond mothers wrapped in pieces of red flannel to give them a wonderful scarlet color. In the first days of Christianity dyed Easter eggs were blessed by the priests and kept as amulets, as mascots. But historians tell us that they find references to the eggs of spring long before the Christian religion came into being, and that the rolling of the Pesche, or Pace, egg is one of the oldest customs in the world. Perhaps the fact that children the world over long ago adopted "egg rolling" as their own especial delight will suffice to keep the Easter egg customs always in fashion.

A Perpetual Job

THE Crow Wing County Game and Fish club has a perpetual job in sight. The club's officers, led by A. A. Weideman, worry each year about stocking lakes in the Brainerd Lake Region, so as to replenish lakes being fished out.

As they increase the finny population and fishing improves, more fishermen gather to fish and deplete the lakes. It is an endless task, the club officials working hard to stock up and make a lake an attractive place so far as fish are concerned and the fishermen figuring that buying a license and fishing tackle is the open sesame for fish.

How many of these fishermen ever give a thought to the patience and hard work and public spirit of the club officials supported by those donating trucks to haul the cans of fish fry, without whom fishing grounds would soon be depleted and no sport left.

Is It Vanity?

WE have noticed in the past that some candidates for office picked out what they considered their best picture to use in a campaign, and the best, in some instances, was a youthful one which did not show their present accumulated years.

A candidate should have his pictures up to date. Show the voters your picture, just as you are today and not as you may have appeared 10 years ago.

Skirt Lengths

SKIRT lengths seem to bother the ladies at this time. Men, in fact, have paid more attention to the short length than the long length. Some fashion authorities now advocate three lengths, the short length for sports, semi-long for afternoon and long for formal evening.

One philosopher has expressed a belief that short skirts should be worn longer and long skirts shorter.

Taking Kinks Out of Roads

ELIMINATION of 35 sharp turns and 10 railroad crossings will be completed this summer, according to C. M. Babcock, commissioner of highways. Fifty-six miles of construction will be undertaken and will effect distance reductions of 5.9 miles.

The sharp turns belong to the days of the horse and buggy. They become a permanent source of danger when permitted to remain in these days of high speed car transportation.

WARMER weather and the approach of Easter has had an accelerating influence on sales at retail stores in the Northwest. R. G. Dun & Co. report. Business has improved particularly in men's furnishings, millinery, dresses and suits for women.

MORE than 40,000 people are expected to attend the International Norwegian Sangerfest at the Minneapolis auditorium June 12 to 15. Three concerts will be given. Music lovers from all over the United States and Canada are expected.

A PERMANENT committee representing churches of Minneapolis has been formed to make an extended study of unemployment and will urge the cooperation of employers, labor and city officials in trying to solve the problem.

NEWS pictures show Gar Wood's latest speed boat tuning up. He expects it to go 100 miles an hour. There may not be much pleasure in being a passenger in such a rush of air and water, but the thrills in case of a spill will be plenty.

FUTURE engagements of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra will include performances in the Twin Cities; St. Joseph, Mo.; Denver, Colo.; Regina, Sask.; Winnipeg, Man.; Moorhead, Minn., and Minot, N. D.

THE 32nd annual convention of the Minnesota State Osteopathic association will convene at the Nicollet hotel in Minneapolis Friday, May 2. Dr. John A. MacDonald of Boston will be the principal speaker.

PROFESSORS and instructors from all over the United States and Minnesota will be on the teaching staff at the summer session of the University of Minnesota.

THE campaign for county superintendent of schools is warming up at Red Wing where 10 candidates have entered the field. The race should be run in relays.

SPECIAL committees in every county of the state are being appointed through the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation to work for better county roads.

Gaynor and Farrell Among 100 Famed Entertainers in "Happy Days"
Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor, one of the most popular romantic teams of the screen are among the 100 entertainers featured in "Happy Days," all star, all talking Fox Movietone musical romance, that will be shown at the Paramount Sunday only.
Farrell and Miss Gaynor made screen history in "7th Heaven," acclaimed as the best picture of 1928 and repeated their success in "Street Angel" before the screen began to talk and, more recently, they were a sensation in "Sunny Side Up."

Dennis King is the latest luminary to forsake Broadway's footlights. Which means, of course, that this famous artist of the musical stage has not retired to private life, but has turned his face to the new Mecca of the theatrical world... Hollywood.

And in making his debut on the audible screen, King, fortunately enough, again sings the role in which he originally sky-rocketed to fame. And that role, as most everyone knows is that of the dauntless vagabond, Francois Villon, the lovable, carefree hero of the colorful Rudolph Frim opera, "The Vagabond King," which so delighted audiences during its extended New York Casino engagement several seasons ago.

Everyone seems to agree that Paramount has scored a veritable bulls-eye in securing the services of Dennis King to sing and enact the title role of this justly famous operetta. For there seems little doubt that only a Dennis King could so magnificently imbue the spark of life into this amazing character; a character gleaned both from the pages of history and the imaginative pen of Justin Huntly McCarthy who wrote the original story under the title "If I Were King."

Ludwig Berger, the noted foreign director, directed "The Vagabond King," which will be shown at the Paramount theatre midnight show to night and then a three day showing starting Monday.

Easter Eggs an Old Custom

THE continuance, the rise and fall of festivals is one of the darker mysteries of the human race, says the New York Herald-Tribune. Why should Easter still be with us when Twelfth Night, Whitsuntide and Michaelmas have almost vanished? Once upon a time Twelfth Night was the jolliest of feasts, merry with was-sail parties, and everybody had a cake, a cake with a bean in it. Frazer gives many of the curious Whitsunday customs, some of which still survive in Europe, though in this country they have virtually disappeared. And where are the goose, the "apple sauce, onions and sage" which once graced the board at the feast of Michaelmas?

Only the egg habit of Easter has grown with the years, and the modern child expects a clutch of eggs with the same confidence as presents at Christmas. In the early days the chocolate eggs, the toy eggs, the pasteboard ovals with their varied "gifts" were unknown. Eggs there were, but they were only the simple product of the hen, which fond mothers wrapped in pieces of red flannel to give them a wonderful scarlet color. In the first days of Christianity dyed Easter eggs were blessed by the priests and kept as amulets, as mascots. But historians tell us that they find references to the eggs of spring long before the Christian religion came into being, and that the rolling of the Pesche, or Pace, egg is one of the oldest customs in the world. Perhaps the fact that children the world over long ago adopted "egg rolling" as their own especial delight will suffice to keep the Easter egg customs always in fashion.

A Perpetual Job

THE Crow Wing County Game and Fish club has a perpetual job in sight. The club's officers, led by A. A. Weideman, worry each year about stocking lakes in the Brainerd Lake Region, so as to replenish lakes being fished out.

As they increase the finny population and fishing improves, more fishermen gather to fish and deplete the lakes. It is an endless task, the club officials working hard to stock up and make a lake an attractive place so far as fish are concerned and the fishermen figuring that buying a license and fishing tackle is the open sesame for fish.

How many of these fishermen ever give a thought to the patience and hard work and public spirit of the club officials supported by those donating trucks to haul the cans of fish fry, without whom fishing grounds would soon be depleted and no sport left.

Is It Vanity?

We have noticed in the past that some candidates for office picked out what they considered their best picture to use in a campaign, and the best, in some instances, was a youthful one which did not show their present accumulated years.

A candidate should have his pictures up to date. Show the voters your picture, just as you are today and not as you may have appeared 10 years ago.

Skirt Lengths

SKIRT lengths seem to bother the ladies at this time. Men, in fact, have paid more attention to the short length than the long length. Some fashion authorities now advocate three lengths, the short length for sports, semi-long for afternoon and long for formal evening.

One philosopher has expressed a belief that short skirts should be worn longer and long skirts shorter.

Taking Kinks Out of Roads

ELIMINATION of 35 sharp turns and 10 railroad crossings will be completed this summer, according to C. M. Babcock, commissioner of highways. Fifty-six miles of construction will be undertaken and will effect distance reductions of 5.9 miles.

The sharp turns belong to the days of the horse and buggy. They become a permanent source of danger when permitted to remain in these days of high speed car transportation.

WARMER weather and the approach of Easter has had an accelerating influence on sales at retail stores in the Northwest, R. G. Dun & Co. report. Business has improved particularly in men's furnishings, millinery, dresses and suits for women.

MORE than 40,000 people are expected to attend the International Norwegian Sangerfest at the Minneapolis auditorium June 12 to 15. Three concerts will be given. Music lovers from all over the United States and Canada are expected.

A PERMANENT committee representing churches of Minneapolis has been formed to make an extended study of unemployment and will urge the cooperation of employers, labor and city officials in trying to solve the problem.

NEWS pictures show Gar Wood's latest speed boat tuning up. He expects it to go 100 miles an hour. There may not be much pleasure in being a passenger in such a rush of air and water, but the thrills in case of a spill will be plenty.

FUTURE engagements of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra will include performances in the Twin Cities; St. Joseph, Mo.; Denver, Colo.; Regina, Sask.; Winnipeg, Man.; Moorhead, Minn., and Minot, N. D.

THE 32nd annual convention of the Minnesota State Osteopathic association will convene at the Nicolet hotel in Minneapolis Friday, May 2. Dr. John A. MacDonald of Boston will be the principal speaker.

PROFESSORS and instructors from all over the United States and Minnesota will be on the teaching staff at the summer session of the University of Minnesota.

THE campaign for county superintendent of schools is warming up at Red Wing where 10 candidates have entered the field. The race should be run in relays.

SPECIAL committees in every county of the state are being appointed through the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation to

GROVER CLEVELAND ALEXANDER, HANK GOWDY AMONG BEST BRIDGE PLAYERS

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, April 15.—Idle for three days in succession, the four National League clubs—Giants, Phillies, Braves and Brooklyn—now playing in Greater New York hoped to get back in action today at the Polo Grounds and Ebbets Field.

The series between the Giants and Phillies brings together the unbeaten National League leaders as both teams won the only game they have played. Carl Hubbell, Giants' southpaw, and Lou Koupal, Phillies' youngster, were nominated to pitch.

Rain in the springs is the grief of everyone connected with baseball—magnate, manager, player and fan. The Phillies and Braves, both quartered at the Alhambra hotel, have been occupying their time as most ball players do on off days. They either play cards, sit in the lobby, or take in shows.

Two of the best bridge players in the National League are on the Braves and Phillies. They are Grover Cleveland Alexander and Hank Gowdy. Burleigh Grimes, recently traded to the Braves, is one of baseball's leading "barbers." A barber is a player who likes to talk. Grimes likes to talk about hunting and fishing around Clear Lake, Wisconsin.

Bob Smith, Braves pitcher, spent several hours yesterday trying to find out who sent him a flower pot of tulips, without enclosing a card. Grimes was the joker, but Smith never found it out. Lefty O'Doul, Phillies' outfielder and National League batting champion, spent his off time seeing musical shows.

Yesterday's hero—"Wild Bill" Hallahan, St. Louis Cardinals' left hander, who let the Chicago Cubs down with two hits, giving the Cards an 11 to 1 victory. Hallahan lived up to his reputation for wildness by walking 9 batters but was at his best in the pinches and fanned 11. An error by Snarky Adams robbed Hallahan of a shutout.

The Pittsburgh Pirates completed their series at Cincinnati with a 5 to 3 victory, and moved to St. Louis as the Cubs invaded Cincinnati.

Wesley Ferrell, 1929 rookie star, pitched the Cleveland Indians to a 7 to 1 win over Detroit in the only American League game of the day. Earl Browne, recruit pitcher, and Ken Penner were ineffective against heavy hitting by Jenkins, Boston and Grimes, and the Milwaukee Brewers took an 11 to 2 victory over Louisville.

ATHLETES FROM FIFTEEN STATES ARE REPRESENTED

INCLUDE TEAMS FROM BIG SIX, ROCKY MOUNTAIN, SOUTH-WEST CONFERENCES

29 UNIVERSITIES AND 41 COLLEGES HAVE LISTED MEET-ENTRIES

Lawrence, Kas., April 15.—(UP)—A fast track and a fair day greeted a brilliant field of track stars today, as they awaited the start of the eighth annual Kansas relays.

The starter's shot will open competition of athletics from 15 states of the middle west and southwest, including teams from the Big Six, Rocky Mountain and southwest conferences. Twenty-nine universities and forty-one colleges have listed entries.

Wilson "Buster" Charles, Oneida Indian of Haskell Institute, lead a field of five track stars in the decathlon event. Five events were run off yesterday afternoon and the Indian had total points of 4,185.95.

The century dash, mile and sprint events promised to be features of the relays today.

Due to their undefeated record, the Missouri Tigers were hoped to win the mile relay, but they had dangerous rivals in the University of Texas.

The University of Kansas was the favorite in the dash relay events.

St. Paul took the odd game, 7 to 4, to win the series from Columbus. Slim Harris started for the Saints but gave way to Murphy in the seventh, while the Saints chased Winters and pounded Doyle for five runs in the 7th to clinch their victory.

Walter Johnson, nationally known baseball idol, long associated with the Washington Senators, at the bedside of his son, Walter, Jr., who is recovering in Georgetown Hospital from two broken legs suffered when he was hit by an automobile.

TAYLOR, LA BARBA FINISH TRAINING FOR THEIR BOUT

Chicago, April 15.—(UP)—Both ambitious for the featherweight title now held by Bat Battalino, Buddy Taylor and Fidel La Barba finished training today for their ten-round bout Monday night.

Taylor was a slight favorite in the betting and the advance ticket sale indicated that the show may be the first in which Dempsey will make money.

NEVING'S HIT WINS 15-INNING VICTORY

Boston, Mass., April 15.—(UP)—Joe Neving's fourth successive hit gave the Boston Red Sox a 15-inning 4 to 3 victory over the New York Yankees in the morning game of the Patriot day celebration.

Naving rapped a single to center scoring Egan from second after 15 innings of a game marked by air tight pitching.

The Kansas City Blues humbled Indianapolis, and evened the series by a 2 to 1 score. Max Thomas, Blues' southpaw, held the Indians to six hits, while Burwell allowed the visitors the same number, and scored the lone tally, a homer, for the Tribe.

The Toledo Mudhens slugged their way to a 17 to 11 victory, winning the third and final game with Minneapolis. Each team used five pitchers. The Hens knocked 17 hits to the Millers' 12.

Homers Feature Opening Day

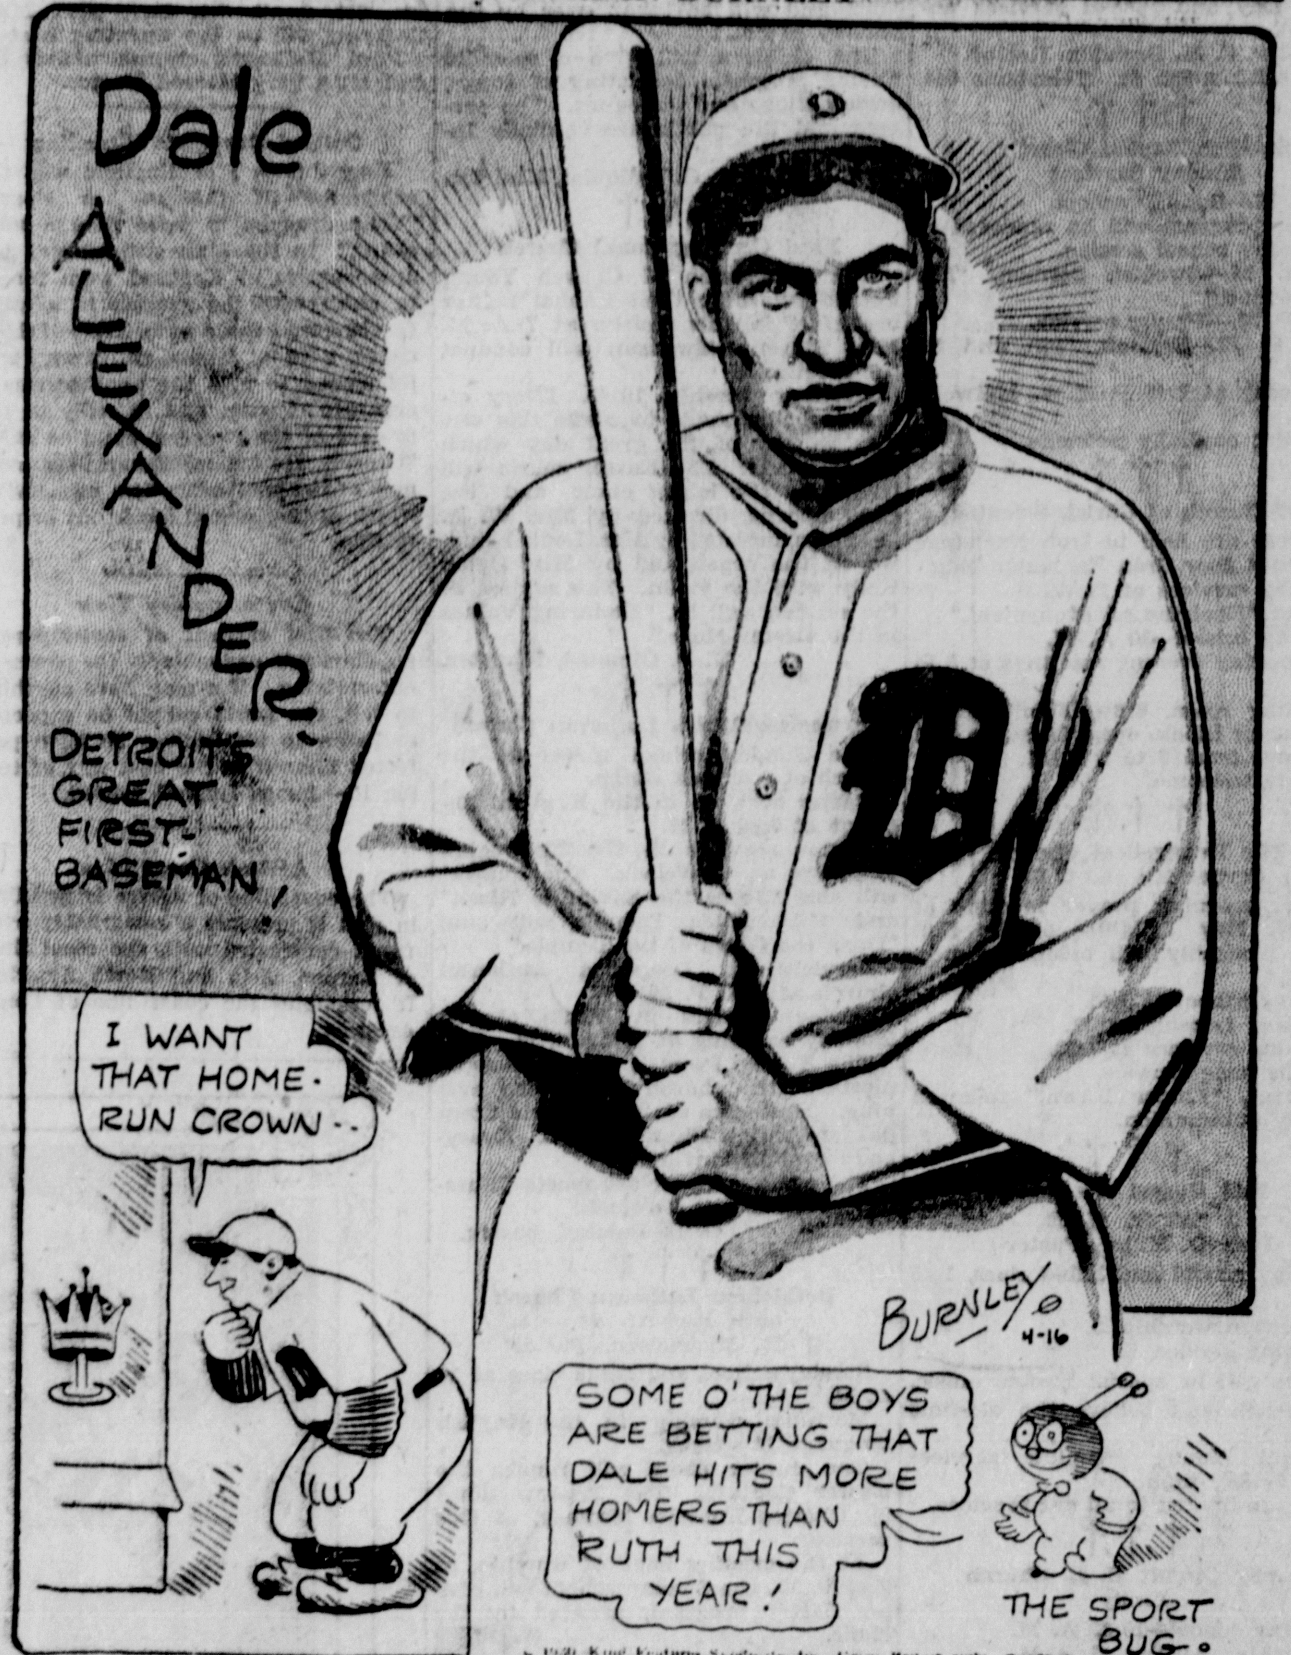

The Goddess of Fortune cast a black shadow over the debut of J. Robert Shawkey as manager of the Yankees. They started the new season by losing to the Athletics at Philadelphia. Al Simmons of the World's Champions, holdout until a few minutes before the gong, slams the first homer of the season. In the game between St. Louis and Detroit, George Uhle (lower right), knocked out the only Tiger home run. Four runs featured the exciting game when Schulte (upper right), of St. Louis followed Kress with a second homer.

Another Alexander!!!

By HARDIN BURNLEY

DETROIT fans feel sure that their Tigers have another baseball super-star in Dale Alexander, strapping first baseman, who batted for .343 in 155 American League games last season, who hit 25 home runs during the same period, and who is tabbed by many—"Babe Ruth's successor as King of Clout." That latter, of course, is a big order to fill.

Even the original Alexander the Great might have given up all thoughts of more worlds to conquer had the ancient Fates sent him after records like Ruth's!

But Detroit's dauntless Dale is not too awed. He will surely try to outdo the Babe in 1939 at least. That is a reasonable ambition. For as Time's corpulent touch tends more and more to retard the Homeric Ruth, other sluggers—possibly the Tiger Alexander—should bounce 'em into the bleachers while the Babe swings just too late!

Detroit's "Alex" has priceless youth and a magnificent physique built from childhood on a Tennessee farm. Sound seasoning in the minors has developed Dale to the point where he was a genuine star last season, with promise of an even better showing in 1939.

Big "Alex" still seems a trifle awkward around first, but he goes after everything and his great reach is a big help to the other infielders. Dale has struggled dil-gently to improve his fielding and he has progressed much in that direction.

However, it is with the war club that "Alex" should pound his way to the heights via drives that will remind the fans of Ruth in his dazzling prime. Moreover, he has a great name to live up to. What a whale Dale will be in baseball if he prove as great a batter as the extraordinary Grover Cleveland Alexander was as a pitcher for many years!

Ah, if "Ol' Pete" had but Dale's youth! But the sport bug is dreaming now of the new Alexander. Yet, in doing so, you just can't keep grand ol' "Alex" out of mind! He was a GREAT ALEXANDER!

RAIN IS GRIEF OF MAJOR LEAGUE CLUBS THIS SPRING

MAGNATE AND MANAGER, PLAYER, FANS AFFECTED

BRILLIANT FIELD AT KANSAS RELAYS OPENING

PHILLIES AND BRAVES PLAYING CARDS, VISIT SHOWS, WAIT FOR GOOD WEATHER

GROVER CLEVELAND ALEXANDER, HANK GOWDY AMONG BEST BRIDGE PLAYERS

(United Press Staff Correspondent) New York, April 18.—Idle for three days in succession, the four National League clubs—Giants, Phillies, Braves and Brooklyn—now playing in Greater New York hoped to get back in action today at the Polo Grounds and Ebbets Field.

The series between the Giants and Phillies brings together the unbeaten National League leaders as both teams won the only game they have played. Carl Hubbell, Giants' southpaw, and Lou Koppell, Phillies' youngster, were nominated to pitch.

Rain in the springs is the grief of everyone connected with baseball—magnate, manager, player and fan.

The Phillies and Braves, both quartered at the Atlantic hotel, have been occupying their time as inebriated ball players do in dry days. They either play cards, sit in the lobby, or take in shows.

Two of the best bridge players in the National League are on the Braves and Phillies. They are Grover Cleveland Alexander and Hank Gowdy.

Burleigh Grimes, recently traded to the Braves, is one of baseball's leading "barbers." (A barber is a player who likes to talk.) Grimes likes to talk about hunting and fishing around Clear Lake, Wisconsin.

Bob Smith, Braves pitcher, spent several hours yesterday trying to find out who sent him a flower pot of tulips, without enclosing a card. Grimes was the joker, but Smith never found it out. Lefty O'Doul, Phillies' outfielder and National League batting champion, spent his off time seeing musical shows.

Settled Druggists' Standing
King James I of England was the originator of the motto slogan, "Your druggist is more than a merchant."

In the sixteenth century the apothecaries of England were forced to unite with the grocers in a guild (a chartered trade association of those days). King James, however, was influenced to give the apothecaries a separate charter, and in reply to the protest of the grocers' guild he said: "Grocers are but merchants; the business of the apothecary is a mystery"—which at that period meant art or profession.

The coast line of Africa is peculiar, in that it presents a remarkably even front, contrasted with the coast lines of Europe, Asia and North America. It resembles the coast line of South America.

Easter Message
The tenant who expects to move next year raises only annuals. The home owner sets out perennials, some of which will not bear for years, but whose ultimate value is well worth waiting for.

The man who lives for this world only seeks only those things which he believes will bring immediate satisfaction, but the Christian, who lives for eternity, seeks values, the full fruits of which only eternity can bring to fruition.

May the gospel of the risen Christ and the assurance of eternal life in him, induce us each to plant in our soul's garden those hardy perennials whose fruit is everlasting life.

Pastor, First Congregational Church.

BLACKBURN TO ARRIVE HOME HERE IN JUNE

Member of Byrd Antarctic Expedition Will Visit Parents in Brainerd

Ship Carrying Son of Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Blackburn Sailing Back Into Civilization

Quin A. Blackburn, member of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition and en route home on the "City of New York" from Little America, Antarctica, will arrive in Brainerd for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Blackburn, 824 North 9th street the latter part of June, according to word received here today.

Mr. Blackburn is expected to arrive in the Canal Zone sometime in March. All Brainerd is expected to welcome home Mr. Blackburn on his arrival here.

Writing from Little America on November 23 a letter received by Mr. Blackburn from his son today reads in part:

"This is to extend to you by proxy, best wishes from the South Pole. It is expected that the Ford Tri-motored ship, Floyd Bennett will take off from here on her history making flight some time during the next 24 hours. The weather is wonderful and careful preparation combined with it to predict a successful culmination of the flight. The South Pole crew will probably consist of Byrd, Balchen, McKinley and June. Here's hoping for success. Extremely busy, hence the shortness of this note. Best wishes from your affectionate son."

The flight referred to was carried out successfully.

Oawenso Camp Fire Girls

The Oawenso Camp Fire Girls held their party recently at which they played a number of games, sang some of the latest songs and also made hats from clay. They met a few days later and painted their beads. They also made a bag of black cloth which to carry their ceremonial pins. During the camp fire meetings they sit on the bags, thus keeping from soiling their ceremonial pins.

A grand council fire will be held in a near future in the high school gymnasium in which all the Camp Fire girls of Brainerd and the Bluebirds will take part. An invitation has been extended to all to come. Candy bars will be on sale to raise money for the Camp Fire groups. The girl who sells the greatest number of boxes of candy will be awarded a prize.

MAPLE GROVE

Orval Holbrook called on Miss Alice Rardin Tuesday evening. Miss Rardin is a normal student at the Brainerd high school and is spending her Easter vacation with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Martin Rardin.

OBSERVE CLIMAX OF PASSION WEEK

Good Friday Evening Services Held at First Presbyterian Church

REV. E. A. VALIANT PREACHES

Topic is "The Cross of Jesus is the Greatest of All Created Things"

The climax of the community observance of Passion Week, under the direction of the Brainerd Ministerial Association, was reached last night when the people of Brainerd packed the First Presbyterian church to the doors, necessitating the adding of many extra seats and the use of the vestibule for the worshippers who could not find places in the auditorium.

This, the annual union Good Friday services, was presided over by Rev. E. A. Kufus, the president of the Ministerial Association, with Rev. T. M. Krauss leading the congregational singing. Miss Effie Drexler was at the piano and led in the anthems sung by the choir. Other parts of the program were taken as follows: Invocation, Rev. A. O. Patterson; scripture reading, Rev. N. P. Olmsted; prayer, Rev. Carl Ackerman; sermon, Rev. Edgar A. Valiant; benediction, Rev. Walter G. Smith.

President Kufus made an appeal to the audience for an offering that would be sufficient to meet the expenses of the week of observance, and to furnish the association with funds for the promotion of the summer work of the churches, among the tourists. A fine response was the result.

The large audience listened with close attention to the sermon presented by Rev. Edgar A. Valiant, acting minister of the First Baptist church, on "The Cross of Jesus the Greatest of All Created Things." The speaker claimed that the cross of Jesus was the greatest of all created things because of its association, its assurance, and its accomplishment.

Seldom has Brainerd entered into and enjoyed such an observance of Passion Week as it has this nineteenth hundredth anniversary of the Passion of Jesus Christ.

Planting and Growing Sweet Peas

Good Friday is the traditional day to plant Sweet Peas. However, any time during the next ten days will do.

In raising Sweet Peas, the best seed you can buy is the cheapest. There has been much discussion on the Western and Eastern seed. The general advice is to sow the Eastern seed (the dark seeded varieties) as early as possible and if the Western seed is sown, to wait until the weather is more settled. The late flowering varieties will give larger blooms and longer stems.

Sweet Peas should be sown in new ground every year. This is very important and one of the chief causes of failure is growing them two or more years in the same ground.

Prepare the ground by digging a trench 18 inches wide and at least 18 inches deep. The deeper the better, for the sweet pea has a long root and thrives in cool, moist soil. Throw top soil to one side of the trench, bottom soil on the other; loosen the bottom of the trench with a fork and fill in two inches of decayed manure or sheep manure. On this place some bottom soil and another layer of fertilizer. Now, return the top soil to the trench mixing this soil with a small amount of bone meal (about two ounces to the yard of trench).

Let the trench settle for a few days before sowing the seed. Before sowing, two six-inch furrows are made, six inches apart and the seed sown in the two rows; sow rather thickly to allow for losses, the surplus plants to be pulled out later. Cover the seed about two inches, firming the soil with the back of the spade. Gradually fill in the trench as the plants grow, being careful not to cover the crowns.

As some seeds germinate slowly, soak them 24 hours before planting. This hastens the germination and prevents rot. A great aid in germination is a preparation called Nitrogen. Directions for use will be found on each can and the same preparation may be used to great advantage on garden peas and beans.

After the buds appear, feed the plants once a week with liquid manure. Apply this along the rows six inches from the plants. Supports for the vines can be made with stout twine or chicken wire. The twine is the best as the wire burns the vines on the hot days. As the weather gets hot, keep the vines with about two inches of grass clippings. The idea is to keep the roots cool and uniformly moist. Pick off the suckers for longer stems and larger blooms. Keep vigilant watch for lice and as soon as they appear, use Black Leaf 40 or Kerosem emulsion spray. Spray carefully the under surface of the foliage where most of them will gather.

Remember, the more blooms you cut, the more you will have. Keep the seed pods from forming and your Sweet Peas will bloom until frost.

PLANT 500 WAPATO IN COUNTY LAKES

Prized Nourishment for Ducks Supplied by State Game and Fish Department

SPORTSMEN PLANT THEM

Give Off Seed, Multiply Rapidly and Have Flowers; Best Duck Feed Known

Ducks harboring in Crow Wing county will live like royalty this summer and fall should they be fortunate enough in selecting the lakes which will be bedded with Wapato, the lotus plant of all duck feed.

Considering the welfare of the feathered game species the State Game and Fish Department has forwarded to Deputy Game Warden A. P. Cardie 500 Wapato plants imbedded in clay. These plants will be taken by sportsmen of Brainerd tomorrow and deposited in the water at edges of lakes.

George Trent, Sr., will take 100 plants to Platte Lake, Leo Skiba will plant another 100 in Lizard Lake, Bob Gustafson will take charge of 100 for the small lakes in the Cross Lake chain and Dan Crosswell and Carl Wright will plant 200 in lakes west of Brainerd.

The plant is fertile, the bulb being similar to a dahlia bulb growing a flower and multiplying rapidly. The food for ducks comes in the eating of the bulbs and roots. It is particularly nourishing to mallards.

Easter's Promise

Easter Sunday marks our annual observance of an anniversary of the Resurrection. It is a reminder of that great promise that there is a life everlasting, as exemplified by the risen Christ. It is fitting that each of us should ponder this great promise, this wondrous message, that we may be better men and women; better Christians.

BLACKBURN TO ARRIVE HOME HERE IN JUNE

Member of Byrd Antarctic Expedition Will Visit Parents in Brainerd

Ship Carrying Son of Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Blackburn Sailing Back Into Civilization

Quin A. Blackburn, member of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition and en route home on the "City of New York" from Little America, Antarctica will arrive in Brainerd for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Blackburn, 824 North 9th street the latter part of June, according to word received here today.

Mr. Blackburn is expected to arrive in the Canal Zone sometime in March. All Brainerd is expected to welcome some Mr. Blackburn on his arrival here.

Writing from Little America on November 23 a letter received by Mr. Blackburn from his son today reads in part:

"This is to extend to you by proxy wishes from the South Pole. It is expected that the Ford Tri-motored ship, Floyd Bennett will take off from here on her history making flight some time during the next 24 hours. The weather is wonderful and careful preparation combines with it to pre-ent a successful culmination of the light. The South Pole crew will probably consist of Byrd, Balchen, McKinley and June. Here's hoping for success. Extremely busy, hence the shortness of this note. Best wishes from your affectionate son."

The flight referred to was carried out successfully.

Oawenso Camp Fire Girls

The Oawenso Camp Fire girls held their party recently at which they played a number of games, sang some of the latest songs and also made pads from clay. They met a few days later and painted their beads. They also made a bag of black oilcloth which to carry their ceremonial items. During the camp fire meetings they sit on the bags, thus keeping from soiling their ceremonial items.

A grand council fire will be held in the near future in the high school gymnasium in which all the Camp Fire girls of Brainerd and the Bluebirds will take part. An invitation has been extended to all to come. Candy bars will be on sale to raise money for the Camp Fire groups. The girl who sells the greatest number of boxes of candy will be awarded a prize.

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

EVELYN READE, young and lovely, is making her first journey alone to visit a friend at Haverford. On the train she meets Kenneth Wilmer, famous artist, who saves her from falling from the platform. Attracted by her old-fashioned sweetness, he feels strangely drawn to her and suddenly kisses her. He persuades her to stop in and see the Hollis, friends of his, instead of going on to her destination. She falls asleep on a couch in the living room. Waking in the morning she is panic stricken and stealthily leaves the house. She finally arrives at her friend's home. Mary Stewart thinks Eve came in on the early morning train. Sunday evening Kenneth Wilmer comes to call. He tells Eve he loves her. Later, Mary warns Eve that her kind and Ken's cannot mix.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER VI.

I'M NOT going to criticize, darling. Art, I suppose, makes strange demands on those who give it to the world. How could it help changing human nature? They say most artists and all great ones are a little insane—but then I suppose any deviation from the straight and not very interesting standard the world calls normal would be considered insanity. . . . It's just what I said, that they see differently.

"Those in the Lane for example—they do all sorts of wild things. They don't seem to care in the least what people think of them."

"That wouldn't spoil them for me, Miss Prim."

"But—you know there's another name for The Lane? Sometimes it's called 'Free Love Lane.' And they say there's plenty of reason for it, too."

Mary gave Eve the look of outraged dignity that is always the expression of conscious virtue facing vice. And saw she had made an impression at last though her friend only shrugged and answered in a cold, distant tone, "If you mean Ken is that sort I don't believe it. He's unconventional but not you nor anyone could make me believe he's—that he is what you're trying to say. I know you mean to be kind, dear, but—please don't speak of this again. And if you're ready I'll go up to bed."

She smiled gallantly enough, gave Mary a good-night kiss. But far into the night Eve sat at the window looking down upon the lilac and syringa bushes just bursting into leaf—the bushes which made shadows where a man might sweep a girl in his arms, whisper, "I love you."

She thought of this. She thought of Kenneth. And of Free Love Lane.

Morning broke like crystal all set with jewels—sapphire sky, emerald fields, pinky-pear blossoms scattered everywhere. In that exquisite borderland between sleep and consciousness Eve lay and dreamed, bright head pillowed on a strong little arm, lashes very dark against her cheeks, a smile curving her lips.

Once again she was strolling through night-time shadows under lilacs and syringas; once again a tall figure was bending to her, a whisper thrummed in her heart, "I love you, Eve—love you—"

But a pin-prick of pain cut through the sweetness, grew sharp, brought her sitting up swiftly with a cry of protest. And now she flamed with anger at Mary who had tried in her snug way to spoil all the beauty, to destroy the precious thing which had come to her. Mary so soft and square, always doing what everyone else did, thinking in the little rut worn narrow and deep by thoughts that milled along blindly like sheep, following a senseless bell-weather notion someone had thought long ago!

Someone somewhere at some time had decided that artists and their kind were different from the run of humanity; that their manners and morals were shaky if not actually disgraceful; that they were a race apart—one which had its place, of course, but not in the correct society of lawyers, bank clerks and merchant chiefs. And how silly that was! As if anyone could be nicer than the Hollis, or more adorable than Ken!

Probably The Lane colony was clannish—reasonable enough they should be—and the rest of Rock-ford County felt a little piqued, even envious, ignored by that brilliant crowd.

Anyway, Eve assured herself as she threw open her trunk and selected a little grass-green linen frock to harmonize with the April morning, she would be influenced by no such narrow views. If she were invited to visit the colony she certainly should go—with a thrill, too.

Besides she loved Ken. No changing that even if she wished—and she did not wish. Wonderful Ken—oh, he was all her dreams of all her life come true! All the romance, the sparkle, the beauty. He was the something which rested at the very depth of life and gave it reason for being at all. . . . And in such a little time she had found this out—two evenings, two meetings, a few kisses, those whispered words of his, "I love you!"

Eve went downstairs and helped Mary get breakfast, going about happily, doing all the things expected of a contented guest and a life-long chum, but determined to keep her thoughts to herself. And she soon saw that Mary did not intend to give any more advice. Perhaps Jimmy had put a stop to this; she spoke enthusiastically of Ken over the breakfast table and said he hoped they would have him come often. And so it was, everything turned out pleasantly, with nothing unusual happening till Eve tried to write a letter to Roger Mills and found she couldn't think of a word to say!

At the little desk up in her room she began it all regularly enough, "Dear Roger." And then sat looking at those words and wondering.

Roger was a nice boy in his way, the way of Jimmy and Mary and most of the folks in Lakeview, Connecticut. One day he would inherit the farm next to the Reade farm and perhaps buy the Reade farm as well since the uncles wanted to sell, for the Mills family had the New England craving for land. Then Roger would be a gentleman farmer, exhibiting blooded stock at all the fairs, eagerly buying magazines which published photographs of farm produce, looking for pictures of his own prize apples and squash and sheep and turkeys among them.

If he were to marry Roger he would give her what everybody expected her to have—a life that was pleasant and quiet and secure. And monotonous. Without the color that had come blazing before her vision with Ken's first kiss.

Of course, Roger never had said anything about marriage. But they had grown up together, gone to school and candy-pulls and hayrides and ice carnivals together. And he called Sunday evenings. In Lakeview this almost meant an engagement. Eve, herself, had rather taken it for granted that, one day she would be Mrs. Mills.

But that was before she had met Ken and discovered a thing which always before had existed dimly in books and less dimly but quite as unrealistically in the movies sprung into breathing, radiant being—love!

She did not love Roger. She never would. For she loved Ken. And Ken? Would he want to marry her?

Her thoughts refused to meet this question. Ken—why, it was enough just to meet him sometimes, just to see him smile, hear him say "Hi, youngster!" in his merry way.

Eve took up the page with "Dear Roger" written at the top. And with it she tore some of the past out of her life, though she did not know this then.

Late in the afternoon it occurred to her that she might call and thank Elma Holly—no, Elma Shields; didn't Ken say she wouldn't answer to her husband's name?—for her hospitality of last Friday night. Perhaps this would be considered too formal for The Lane, but . . . well, why not be honest? There was a chance of meeting Ken if she were to go!

Mary was taking a nap and Eve did not disturb her. She put on a wide straw hat, green like the dress and, looking very much like a little springtime tree suddenly grown feet and gone for a stroll, set out in the direction of the colony, cutting across fields to save the long distance by the road.

She climbed a gentle hill, wandered across a valley and found herself approaching a low wood-brown bungalow set in the midst of a clump of evergreens. She was coming upon the place from the rear and considered going around another way since she would wind up in the very doorway. But there seemed no life about the place and so she kept on, climbing a fence or two, skipping over stepping stones around which tinkled the waters of a tiny stream.

Then Eve pushed through a hedge and stopped suddenly, amazed and embarrassed, before a long and astonishingly thin young man. He sat at a rough board table under a scrubby spruce, slouched low in a rustic chair, a pipe in his mouth and his gawling legs on the table. A battered typewriter was near at hand and a great deal of what she later knew for copy paper was scattered about.

The young man had dark, untidy hair and was not at all handsome; yet something in his lean face—some quality of humor perhaps or possibly it was his rather tired, heavy-lidded eyes—held Eve in a sort of spell; she could only stand there staring, feeling her face burn because she could not turn her gaze away.

Never, she thought, had she seen such an intelligent face; never had she encountered a person who looked so alive and at the same time so weary.

If the man were surprised at sight of her he gave no evidence of it. Taking his legs from the table in a leisurely way he removed the pipe from his mouth and regarded her half smiling, wholly friendly. And when he spoke she felt that his voice rose from some place far down his long frame, so deep it was.

"Hello, dryad. I say," he enquired wistfully, "can you make tea?"

To Be Continued Monday.

Variations in Cider

Cider, as made outside the United States, is alcoholic. It is the vinous fermentation of the expressed juice of apples. Many fine ciders are of certain vintage varieties of the fruit. The elder apple orchards of the world are mainly confined to certain districts of France and England. In America fresh unfermented apple juice is called elder.

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

EVELYN READE, young and lovely, is making her first journey alone to visit a friend at Haverford. On the train she meets Kenneth Wilmer, famous artist, who saves her from falling from the platform. Attracted by her old-fashioned sweetness, he feels strangely drawn to her and suddenly kisses her. He persuades her to stop in and see the Hollis, friends of his, instead of going on to her destination. She falls asleep on a couch in the living room. Waking in the morning she is panic stricken and stealthily leaves the house. She finally arrives at her friend's home. Mary Stewart thinks Eve came in on the early morning train. Sunday evening Kenneth Wilmer comes to call. He tells Eve he loves her. Later, Mary warns Eve that her kind and Ken's cannot mix.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER VI.

I'M NOT going to criticize, darling. Art, I suppose, makes strange demands on those who give it to the world. How could it help changing human nature? They say most artists and all great ones are a little insane—but then I suppose any deviation from the straight and not very interesting standard the world calls normal would be considered insanity. . . . It's just what I said, that they see differently.

"Those in the Lane for example—they do all sorts of wild things. They don't seem to care in the least what people think of them."

"That wouldn't spoil them for me, Miss Prim."

"But—you know there's another name for The Lane? Sometimes it's called 'Free Love Lane.' And they say there's plenty of reason for it, too."

Mary gave Eve the look of outraged dignity that is always the expression of conscious virtue facing vice. And saw she had made an impression at last though her friend only shrugged and answered in a cold, distant tone, "If you mean Ken is that sort I don't believe it. He's unconventional but not you nor anyone could make me believe he's that. He is what you're trying to say. I know you mean to be kind, dear, but—please don't speak of this again. And if you're ready I think I'll go up to bed."

She smiled gallantly enough, gave Mary a good-night kiss. But far into the night Eve sat at the window looking down upon the lilac and syringa bushes just bursting into leaf—the bushes which made shadows where a man might sweep a girl in his arms, whisper, "I love you."

She thought of this. She thought of Kenneth. And of Free Love Lane.

Morning broke like crystal all set with jewels—sapphire sky, emerald fields, pinky-pear blossoms scattered everywhere. In that exquisite borderland between sleep and consciousness Eve lay and dreamed, bright head pillowed on a strong little arm, lashes very dark against her cheeks, a smile curving her lips.

Once again she was strolling through night-time shadows under lilacs and syringas; once again a tall figure was bending to her, a whisper thrummed in her heart, "I love you, Eve—love you—"

But a pin-prick of pain cut through the sweetness, grew sharp, brought her sitting up swiftly with a cry of protest. And now she flamed with anger at Mary who had tried in her snug way to spoil all the beauty, to destroy the precious thing which had come to her. Mary so so—red square, red did, thinking in the little rut worn narrow and deep by thoughts that milled along blindly like sheep, following a senseless bell-weather notion someone had thought long ago!

Someone somewhere at some time had decided that artists and their kind were different from the run of humanity; that their manners and morals were shaky if not actually disgraceful; that they were a race apart—one which had its place, of course, but not in the correct society of lawyers, bank clerks and merchant chiefs. And how silly that was! As if anyone could be nicer than the Hollis, or more adorable than Ken!

Probably The Lane colony was clannish—reasonable enough they should be—and the rest of Rockfield County felt a little piqued, even envious, ignored by that brilliant crowd.

Anyway, Eve assured herself as she threw open her trunk and selected a little grass-green linen frock to harmonize with the April morning, she would be influenced by no such narrow views. If she were invited to visit the colony she certainly should go—with a thrill, too.

Besides she loved Ken. No changing that even if she wished—and she did not wish. Wonderful Ken—oh, he was all her dreams of all her life come true! All the romance, the sparkle, the beauty. He was the something which rested at the very depth of life and gave it reason for being at all. . . . And in such a little time she had found this out—two evenings, two meetings, a few kisses, those whispered words of his, "I love you!"

Eve went downstairs and helped Mary get breakfast, going about happily, doing all the things expected of a contented guest and a life-long chum, but determined to keep her thoughts to herself. And she soon saw that Mary did not intend to give any more advice. Perhaps Jimmy had put a stop to this; he spoke enthusiastically of Ken over the breakfast table and said he hoped they would have him some often. And so it was, everything turned out pleasantly, with nothing unusual happening till Eve tried to write a letter to Roger Mills and found she couldn't think of a word to say!

At the little desk up in her room she began it all regularly enough, "Dear Roger." And then sat looking at those words and wondering.

Roger was a nice boy in his way, the way of Jimmy and Mary and most of the folks in Lakeview, Connecticut. One day he would inherit the farm next to the Reade place and perhaps buy the Reade farm as well since the uncles wanted to sell, for the Mills family had the New England craving for land. Then Roger would be a gentleman farmer, exhibiting blooded stock at all the fairs, eagerly buying magazines which published photographs of farm produce, looking for pictures of his own prize apples and squash and sheep and turkeys among them.

If she were to marry Roger he would give her what everybody expected her to have—a life that was pleasant and quiet and secure. And monotonous. Without the color that had come blazing before her vision with Ken's first kiss.

Of course, Roger never had said anything about marriage. But they had grown up together, gone to school and candy-pulls and hayrides and ice carnivals together. And he called Sunday evenings. In Lakeview this almost meant an engagement. Eve, herself, had rather taken it for granted that, one day she would be Mrs. Mills.

But that was before she had met Ken and discovered a thing which always before had existed dimly in books and less dimly but quite as unrealistically in the movies sprung into breathing, radiant being—love!

She did not love Roger. She never would. For she loved Ken. And Ken? Would he want to marry her?

Her thoughts refused to meet this question. Ken—why, it was enough just to meet him sometimes, just to see him smile, hear him say "Hi, youngster!" in his merry way.

Eve tore up the page with "Dear Roger" written at the top. And with it she tore some of the past out of her life, though she did not know this then.

Late in the afternoon it occurred to her that she might call and thank Elma Holly—no, Elma Shields; didn't Ken say she wouldn't answer to her husband's name?—for her hospitality of last Friday night. Perhaps this would be considered too formal for The Lane, but—well, why not be honest? There was a chance of meeting Ken if she were to go!

Mary was taking a nap and Eve did not disturb her. She put on a wide straw hat, green like the dress and, looking very much like a little springtime tree suddenly grown feet and gone for a stroll, set out in the direction of the colony, cutting across fields to save the long distance by the road.

She climbed a gentle hill, wandered across a valley and found herself approaching a low wood-brown bungalow set in the midst of a clump of evergreens. She was coming upon the place from the rear and considered going around another way since she would wind up in the very doorway. But then she seemed to see about the place and she kept on, climbing a fence or two, stepping over stepping stones around which tinkled the waters of a tiny stream.

Then Eve pushed through a hedge and stopped suddenly, amazed and embarrassed, before a long and astonishingly thin young man, who sat at a rough board table under a scrubby spruce, slouched low in a rustic chair, a pipe in his mouth and his gaudy legs on the table. A battered typewriter was near at hand and a great deal of what she later knew for copy paper was scattered about.

The young man had dark, untidy hair and was not at all handsome; yet something in his lean face—some quality of humor perhaps or possibly it was his rather tired hazel eyes—held Eve in a sort of spell; she could only stand there staring, feeling her face burn because she could not turn her gaze away.

Never, she thought, had she seen such an intelligent face; never had she encountered a person who looked so alive and at the same time so weary.

If the man were surprised at sight of her he gave no evidence of it. Taking his legs from the table in a leisurely way he removed the pipe from his mouth and regarded her half smiling, wholly friendly. And when he spoke she felt that his voice rose from some place far down his long frame, so deep it was.

"Hello, dryad. I say," he enquired wistfully, "can you make tea?"

Variations in Cider

Cider, as made outside the United States, is alcoholic. It is the vinous fermentation of the expressed juice of apples. Many fine ciders are of certain vintage varieties of the fruit. The elder apple orchards of the world are mainly confined to certain districts of France and England. In America fresh unfermented apple juice is called elder.
